This portable combination lute and harpsichord projects its sound far and wide. It strikes fear in your enemies and emboldens your allies. Each turn that you spend playing the majestic Lutischord gives DR-2 to attack and defence to all your allies. As well, you look

LUTISCHORD

BLACK POWDER PISTOLA

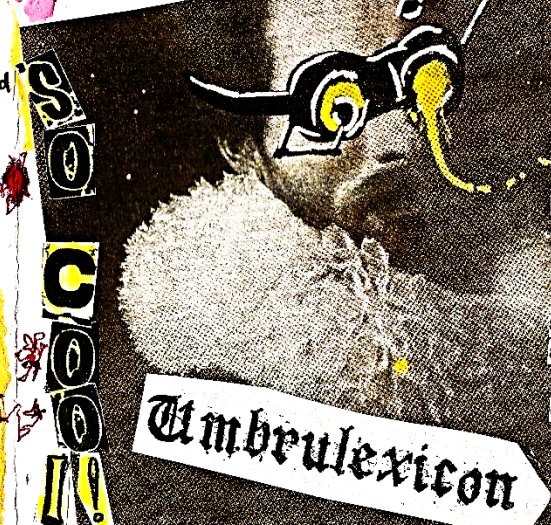

Dangerous up close, but bloody useless at any sort of range, this pistol may be used in melee, but imposes +2DR to defence rolls, and may only be shot at range at +4DR. Use Presence to hit. d6+3/ damage. Takes one turn to reload. Takes iron nails as ammo. Given 2s and a DR14 Presence test each morning, you are able to scrounge together what you need to produce d4 black powder charges. This may be done once per rest, regardless of location. If you fire the pistol into the air force all enemies to make a moral check and, as a consequence, look so cool.

While worn, you can see in the dark, have -2DR to Presence tests requiring eyesight or searching, and find an additional d20s after each battle. At night they glow with an eerie yellow light and look

Umbrulexicon

The trees of Hsaktas tore at your clothes, but the tools you brought with you made short work of its dense layers. You sneer and pity these peoples. Wallowing in ignorance, superstition, and tradition. Perhaps you can impart some modicum of knowledge and reason to this disastrous land, and bring back items of note when you return to Umbru.

Begins with 3d6x10s and d2 Omeris. HP: Toughness+d4

ABILITIES:

Clever, roll 3d6+2 for Presence. Frail, roll 3d6-2 for Toughness. Generally Disagreeable, when purchasing anything it costs an additional d10s as the shop keeps find you unpleasant. Pretentious, or illiterate, you are unable or unwilling to read scrolls. Inventive nature, when you "get better" for the first time, you may spend 50s and two days to roll an additional ability from the table below. You may only do this once. Roll d4 on the weapon table, and d2 on the armor table. As well, begin with one of the following:
